

We hope that all students are working hard today and communicating with their teachers/completing assignments, etc.

Yesterday was our first Flex Day. If students did not hear back from their teachers yesterday it is because they were planning and working collaboratively on lessons/activities and assessments within their departments. Students can use the Tuesday Flex Days as a catch up day; knowing that no new work will be assigned on that day and teachers will not be holding Zoom sessions or responding to email. For some classes, paraeducators are able to support students through zoom sessions and skills centers on Tuesday Flex Days. I want to make sure that students are not frustrated; you should have a response from your teacher soon. Thanks and keep working hard MHS students. It is more important now than ever that you remain engaged in school and with your teachers through this remote period. We miss you and want you to be successful in making that progress toward Graduation!
